

Community Giving

Help us build healthier communities.

With support from SCAN Health Plan, Independence at Home established its Community Giving programs to help local communities achieve their goals, supporting the mission to keep seniors healthy and independent.

IAH also offers a wide range of sponsorship opportunities for funding specific events, functions or programs.

Sponsorship.

Independence at Home's Community Giving sponsorship program recognizes opportunities that support special events, functions or programs. These sponsorships support the organizations that provide services to at-risk seniors.

Grants.

The IAH Community Giving grant program provides funding for community-based non-profit organizations whose services help older adults maintain their independence. This is accomplished through one-time operating grants. IAH's goal is to identify organizations whose work aligns with supporting SCAN's mission of keeping seniors healthy and independent.

IAH's community giving program helps to close the gaps for senior focused community service organizations in the areas where SCAN operates.

"A 66-year-old female client was a victim of domestic violence who resided in a homeless shelter. The client was able to secure an apartment so she could move out of the homeless shelter but needed assistance with the move-in fee. SCAN's Community Giving grant to the receiving organization provided emergency housing assistance to help her move and get a fresh start."
